T2T Express shuttle buses to help commuters during $896m project

A new trial express bus service to the city will commence from July 11 to help improve commuters travelling to and from the city during the $896 million North-South Corridor Torrens Road to River Torrens project.

Substantial works will be undertaken at the intersections of South Road, and Torrens, Port and Grange roads, to complete the project by the end of 2018.

Eight bus services will operate between the Arndale Centre Interchange and the city on weekdays, with four to the city in the morning peak and four to Arndale in the evening peak.

A temporary 115 space Park 'n' Ride will be created between Arndale and Gray streets to provide free exclusive all-day car parks for Adelaide Metro commuters.

Background

Existing bus stops at Arndale and the city will be used and Adelaide Metro fares will apply.

The city-bound morning service will operate as an express service from Arndale Centre Interchange to the Women's and Children's Hospital, where it will begin picking up and setting down passengers before terminating at stop F1 King William Street.

The out-bound afternoon service will leave Victoria Square at stop U1, picking up and setting down passengers through to the Women's and Children's Hospital, before continuing as an express service to Arndale Centre Interchange.

The additional services will support existing public transport options including Adelaide Metro return services already running between Kilkeny and the city, and Outer Harbor and Grange train services running between Woodville Park and the city.

Quotes attributable to Transport and Infrastructure Minister Stephen Mullighan

This trial will give commuters an alternative hassle-free way to get in and out of the city during some of the most significant periods of Torrens to Torrens works.

If it is successful, the trial could be extended for the remaining 18 months of the project.

It will also help to reduce congestion for other road users who are unable to use the service for any reason, such as those who derive an income from using the road.

The State Government is committed to making the journey for all road users as smooth as possible during this period of record investment in road infrastructure projects.

That includes through initiatives such as these express buses and our Operation Moving Traffic initiatives including the world-leading AddInsight app, which gives motorists advanced verbal notification when they are approaching congestion and roadworks.
